Sichtblende I (Window Blind I)

The vista from a window on an industrial landscape and the overlying reflection of a building in an opened windowpane, create the theme of the video sequence recorded with a stationary camera.

By opening and closing the window blinds in front of both perspectives, parts of the landscape or of the building are concealed and again released. Successively new possible perspectives occur. The images that run one after another, are created by opening the window blinds horizontally, and establish at the same time an association towards the vertically outlined image build-up of the medium video. The order of the different positions of the window blinds generates the speed as well as a seeming story within the sequence, wherein the representation of the perspectives directly, reflected and superposed is shown or vice versa the abstract appearing vertical pattern of the window blinds becomes more prominently visible and seemingly resolves the picture. The different image possibilities continue alternately in an unlimited sequence.

Hausaufbau VII (House Setup VII)

The perspective from the window towards a house and the reflection of this house in the windowpane are framed in equal parts in the format of a video image.

With the movement of the windowpane the reflection of the house is repositioned on the glass surface. The architectural space of the outlook situation changes gradually, and new building constellations appear within the image detail.

By opening and closing the shutters that are installed in front of the window, different parts of the house are successively obscured and again released.

Determined by the tempo of the engines of the shutters, the architectural space constantly changes also.

All processes of opening and closing and the possibility of the reflection are combined and are continued one after another, and create a long sequence of image space- and perspective possibilities.
